Coconino County Elections Department Completes City of Page Recount with a 100% Match

The Coconino County Elections Department has officially concluded the court-ordered recount process for two races in the City of Page. The Recount results confirmed, without discrepancy, the originally certified election results. This outcome reaffirms the integrity and accuracy of the electoral process conducted in Coconino County.

The recount, initiated as part of statutory requirements, involved a meticulous review of ballots cast in the City of Page during the November election. The process included multiple stakeholders, like election officials, party representatives, and community members, who were present throughout the process to ensure transparency and fairness.

"The recount process is a testament to the reliability of our election systems," said Eslir Musta, Coconino County Elections Director. "The accuracy of our election results is a testament to the dedication and professionalism of our election staff and volunteers who consistently uphold the highest standards of integrity and trust."

The successful recount demonstrates the effectiveness of the tabulation equipment, and the rigorous checks and balances implemented during the election cycle. Coconino voters in the City of Page can remain confident that their voices were accurately counted.
